

16th Taiwan Program

Tentative date: May 9 -- July 6, 2019

With the growing technologies in information, communication and transportation, the world seems smaller. Cultures have become closer and more interactive. Understanding other cultures has become a must in life.

As we live through the transition of this global setting, providing our students an opportunity to learn about the lifestyle and thought process of people from other lands would more adequately prepare them for their future career.

This is even more critical for design students since design has become more and more universal and cross-cultural.

Exposure to new cultures, experiences, and communication challenges can be accomplished by providing opportunities for students to travel and live in other countries, learning design with students of those countries.
